

July 2021

Dear Member,

In past years we have usually taken a break from regular monthly meetings in July and August. However, due to the fact that it has been over a year since we have had a face to face meeting the Executive Committee thought it would be a great idea if we could have some type of in person meeting. The plan is for a late afternoon outdoor get together. Keep an eye on the TPC FaceBook page and your email for upcoming details.

Also we have four new Executive Committee members. The club is honored to have Sue Lurie, Cathy Aronson, Karyn Schiller and Moose Henderson to help direct the club.

Cathy Aronson

I am a recovering Internet Geek who lives full time in Jackson, WY. I have been taking pictures since I was in my teens. In 2013 I learned night photography and became a very passionate night photographer. My digital printing business, Daydream Imagery, (daydream.com) grew out of my desire to make good quality prints of my photography. I now have a thriving business printing for painters and photographers. I recently began photographing art and producing prints for painters as well as experimenting with other substrates such as tin foil and molded plastic. I guided photography tours and taught photography in the Grand Tetons for a number of years. I now teach photography and printing for Honoring Our Veterans (honorvets.org) . I am also on the board of Honoring Our Veterans. I am interested in being on the board of TPC because I want to contribute to our wonderful community of photographers. I am also the chair of the board of Industry Network Technology Council. (industrynetcouncil.org)

Moose Henderson

Moose Henderson is a professional wildlife and nature photographer based out of Jackson, Wyoming. Moose Henderson has been involved in photography for over 50 years.

He tried his hand at portrait and wedding photography but found his love of animals quickly overpowered his desire to photograph people. His education background in science helps him better understand his subjects and predict behavior patterns.

He has a B.S. in geology, an M.S. in wildlife biology and he studied winter moose foraging behavior during his PhD. He has extensively photographed animals around North America and spent two years in Siberia photographing wildlife.

His images are handled by multiple stock agencies and he has over 11,000 published credits. A partial list of magazine publications includes Earth Justice, Encyclopedia Britannica, Geographical, Grit, Mother Earth News, MSN, National Geographic, National Wildlife Federation, Outside, Outdoor Photographer, Science Daily, Smithsonian, US Forest Service, and WWF. He has had participated in exhibits in Russia, Kazakhstan and North America.

Karyn Schiller

"After 10 years of planning I finally realized my dream last year of moving to Jackson full time together with my husband, Marc. I am a passionate wildlife photographer and after my first trip out here 11 years ago, I knew it was here I needed to be. I love nothing more than being out searching for animals, and then experiencing the thrill of trying to capture images that move people to greater appreciation of our wild places. In my other life I am also an immigration lawyer, mother and newly-minted grandmother. I look forward to many wonderful experiences through the TPC with you all and am honored to be a part of this group."

Sue Lurie

The Jackson's Hole valley has been my heart home since I moved here in the early 1970s. Typical of just about everyone we knew, our garage looked as though we were competing with one of the local sporting goods stores. Along with the other fun stuff, I had a 35mm camera that went in the backpack or the canoe or on whatever sort of outing we went on. That said, I didn't really know what I was doing with it; and improvements were incremental, at best.

I left the valley for a number of years to go back to college, coming home with, among other things, my first DSLR camera. I still didn't know what I was doing; so, when I found out about the Teton Photography Club, I became a member. Doing so has pushed me to learn in ways I wouldn't have otherwise tried or known about, and members are always willing to share tips and helpful critiques.

Although I'm way behind everyone else on the knowledge curve, being a club member has been a great help in terms of skill development. I'd like to be able to encourage others who are just starting out to make use of the club's collective expertise, and I'd like to find additional ways the club can help beginners develop their skills and personal visions. I enjoy looking for new and different places around the region to photograph, so perhaps I can add to the Club's activities (and fun!) by organizing day trips as time and opportunities present themselves.

July PMP Snapshot Entries

Our two featured photos this week are from the Peer Mentor Meeting. In first place was Tim Cully's night shot of the Elk at the Wildlife Art Museum with a beautiful Milky Way background. The comments of this photo made it clear that this image was a winner! Also in first place was a unique iPhone photo (yep, a good photographer can take good photos with a smart phone) of a dandelion in B&W by Barney Koszalka.

In second place was an image by Charlotte Kit of a pronghorn on a Teton hillside surrounded by cactus ... oh wait, those objects don't all live in the same place. Turns out that Charlotte pulled together a Photoshop collect to create her silhouette. Third place was taken by David Navratil of an elephant in front of a wispy tree and a beautiful sky. Hmm, David hadn't been off to Africa but he did have an object he could put in front of a beautiful sky. David and Charlotte demonstrated how a photographer could build a silhouette photo. In fourth place was Randy Isaacson's lens-flare of three lamp post in his yard with a evening storm on the way. And the second fourth place was a fishing boat coming into a harbor in Maine with a beautiful sunset in the background by Lou Hochheiser. If you want to see the other images head over to the TPC Peer Mentor Gallery (<https://tetonphotographyclub.org/our-groups/peer-mentor-program/pmp-monthly-theme-gallery/pmp-2021-monthly-theme-gallery/>) is posting the top photos.

Barney and Tim decided on Macro as the July 14th Challenge Theme for the next Zoom Meeting. The next Peer Mentor Zoom Meeting will be on the 2nd Wednesday in July.

If the COVID-19 remains in control in Jackson it is very likely that there will be a Face-to-Face Peer Mentor Meeting in Meridian Trust on the 4th Wednesday July 28th. More information will be sent to all peer mentors by e-mail in the coming month.

Would you like to see your picture featured? We'd love to include your image in the monthly newsletter. Every month I'll select a photo submitted by one of our awesome members. To submit, email me at news@tetonphotographyclub.org. Include the photo, your name, shooting data, and a few sentences about your image.

Teton Photography Club July 2021 Monthly Meeting

From the President

Members,

I hope you all had a great July 4th and are safe and sound as the country continues to recovery from the Covid virus and its effects. As noted earlier in this email we hope to have an informal meeting this month. Please keep an eye on the facebook page and your email for more information

I want to personally welcome our new TPC Ex Committee members and thank them for stepping forward to help the club. I know they all have a love of photography and will be real asset in helping move the club forward.

Happy shooting!

David Navratil

Did You Know?

Most early film rendered white and blue as the same value. This is why in many old photographs there are no clouds in the sky.
